THE IRON HALLERS ELECT

Towne Is the New Supreme Justice and Jones, of Boston, Is Vice-Justice.

Landers and Cobb, of This City, Made Accountant and Cashier-Laws Revised-Supremers' Power Curtailed.

Wednesday morning, damp and dismal, brought no rest to the delegates of the Iron Hall convention. They assembled in the Iron Hall building, on the Circle, and soon settled down to the prevailing business. The day's proceedings were marked with more uniform effort to "do business," and do it as quickly as possible, than was apparent on the days previous, yet things moved slowly. A greater part of the delegates are afflicted with a mania to talk whenever they can get a chance, and they have not learned to deny themselves. They may talk sensibly, but they put on too many furbelows. It was the intention of the chair to get as near done as possible yesterday, and, with that end in view, he pounded for order viciously. MORE NOMINATIONS.

The first business of the convention was the continuation of the nominations for supreme officers, and they were called for. A permanent committee of five on laws and supervision was first on the list, and the following names were placed before the following names were placed before the convention: F. A. Winn, St. Louis; W. F. Lander, Indianapolis; A. A. Freyman, Kansas City; H. C. McMahon, Philadelphia; E. E. Perrin, Detroit; S. L. Dwight, Chicago; E. O. Buchanan, Florida; C. M. Boyce, Albany, N. Y.; H. C. Holthaus, Baltimore; Mrs. Nanie Fox, Nashville, and J. R. Morford, Springfield, Ill. For five members of the finance committee the following were named: F. H. Walls, Vineland, N. J.; J. S. Elkins, Indiana, Pa.; F. A. Winn, St. Louis; Harry Leubart, Philadelphia; S. L. Bloomberg, Riehmond, Va.; Mrs. Rose Sampson, Detroit; V. C. Alderson, Chicago; M. M. Treadwell, Philadelphia; Henry Sondbeim, Bradford, Pa.; Fred Wyland, Indianapolis; Albert Haesler, Philadelphia; E. E. Perrin, bert Haesler, Philadelphia; E. E. Perrin, Detroit; N. S. Fernald, Portland, Me., and James G. Young. Kansas City. After the nominations the minutes of the proceedings of the day previous were read and adopted with very little discussion. The secretary reported that she had collected $214 toward defraying the expenses of the convention, and that more was coming in. The convention made arrangements to have a picture of all the delegates taken, which will be done. The balance of the which will be done. The balance of the morning session was consumed in debate and general talk.

PLENTY OF SPEECHES. The delegates were slow in arriving for the afternoon session, and it was nearly? o'cleck when Chairman Young rated his gavel for order. The Chair said that the yet ready to report, and that he would fill up the time consumed by them by running over the list of nominations to give other names a chance to be placed on it. Supreme-justice was called first. Z. L. Downing, of Indianapolis, demanded attention. He spoke long and fervently for a man whom, he said, he thought most fitting to fill the position. He ended his enlogy by nominating long Mr. Jones, of Boston. That gentleman had already been nominated for vice-justice, had been elected door-keeper at large, a duty he sadly neglected, and was on several committees. He arose and declined. He said why he did so. He has a wife at home. He had promised her he wouldn't be elected for office, and that he was just a little bit afraid of the wife of long Mr. Jones, of Boston. Fred Wyland then nominated Albert Cobb, cashier of the Meridian National Bank, for the position of supreme cashier. Judge Harnesberger, of Kaneas City, nominated Dr. A. A Freyman, of the same city, for the office of medical director. Delegate Hanselman, a prominent attorney of Ravenna, O., named the convention's chairman for the office of supreme instructor. He spoke warmly, and the generous applanse given him showed that he had spoken on a popular subject. A speech was demanded from the nominee, and he responded in his most happy vein. The convention evidently thought that Coi. James G. Young really could not help his popularity. J. S. Elkins, George Phillips and S. L. Bloomberg spoke in favor of him. Sister Craig, of Detroit, was nominated for supreme prelate. Frank Kidd, of Chicago, placed the name of W. T. Crouch, of the same city, before the convention for one of the five supreme trustees. No other names being offered, the nominations were then passed for the time being. committee on laws and revision was not yet ready to report, and that he would fill

THE LAWS REVISED. The committee on revision sent word that they were ready to report, and the chair signified his intention of hearing it. F. A. Winn, of St. Louis, as chairman, read its report. The preliminary address was divided into six parts, and was a resume of the history of the Iron Hall. It cited in particular the details and result of the receivership trial, and contained many pertinent suggestions as to the ways of getting around the iron wall that the receiver has cast about the order. The first amendment offered was to Section 19 of Article 1. It was that the finance committee shall designate a bank or banks in which the funds of the supreme sitting shall be deposited, that all remittances from local branches shall be sent direct to that bank, and all claims be paid directly from such bank.

The second was to Section 15, Article 1, and was to the effect that monthly statements should be sent to branches.

The third was to Section 10 of Article 7, and eliminated the differences between male and female members. The section referring to the issuing of letters by supreme officers without the sanction of the Supreme Sitting, and providing for their discharge on so doing, was eliminated. The one which provided that no supreme officer might hold an office in local branches was also eradicated. A new section was intro-duced which states that membership in any other order does not disbar member-ship in the Iron Hall, and another which provided that after a member had been paying on his certificate two years he should be entitled to take out another, which should cost him just the same, but on which he should not be entitled to sick benefits. The latter was the last offered, and it provoked a very heated discussion. D. D. Ackley was its principal opposer, and he made a long and fiery speech. His point was that if no sick benefits were allowed when people got ready to take out more in-surance they would seek other orders for their certificates—orders in which they could get such benefits. F. A. Winn replied to him, and stated that the reason for that amendment was that it would do away with members getting large sick benefits by paying in little money. Mr. Winn also made a long speech urging delegates to a stanch support of the new regime, and the report of the committee was adopted.

OFFICERS ELECTED. That done away with, there was a call for an election of officers, and it was so ordered. C. B. Feibleman demanded the Chair's attention amid a great deal of confusion. When he could be heard he moved that the election of Samuel P. Towne, of Philadelphia, for supreme justice, be made by acclamation, as he was the only candidate. It was done, and Mr. Towne made a short address. Long Mr. Jones, of Boston, went through for vice-justice as though reclining on a toboggan slide. He gracefully acknowledged the compliment, and it now remains to see what Mrs. Jones will do.

The election of supreme accountant was next called, and the convention went into a storm of argument and eulogistic debate. The nominee up to that time was W. F. Lander, of Indianapolis, but before an expression could be called some one nominated S. L. Bloomberg, of Richmond, Va. Mr. Bloomberg has made many friends by his active work in the convention, and his name was warmly applanded. Several delegates made speeches in his favor, and the friends of Mr. Lander were stirred to active work for fear that the convention would be stam-peded to him. F. A. Winn made an enthusiastic appeal for Mr. Lander. He cited the time when Mr. Lander had served as supreme accountant, how he had refused to wear the Somerby collar, and ended by wanted. Mr. Bloomberg finally withdrew in his favor, and Mr. Lander was elected by acclamation. He made his acknowledgements. William Fletcher, Kansas City, V. C. Anderson, Chicago, and Albert Cobb. Indianapolis, were the nominees for supreme cashier. Before a ballot was called it was seen that sentiment was all in favor of Mr. Cobb, and he was elected by acclamation, the others withdrawing in his favor. The convention then adjourned for supper.

AN AWFUL EXAMPLE. Chairman Young found the paper safe that had previously graced the ante-room calmly reposing on his rostrum on his return from supper, and his stand gone. Some wag intimated that the safe was symbolic of the Iron Hall under the old regime, and that it was put up there as a terrible example. It was evident when the assemblage convened that the Chair meant to padlock on the fund of humor he has stored somewhere about him, combed his long beard with nervous fingers and scowled, a so far unheard-of thing for the Missouri colonel. When the election of medical director was called, it being the first business of the evening, he sent the delegates to voting with a vengeance. If a delegate was not quick to answer his name the Chair would sharply say. "Call the next," and it had the effect of hustling business along, as it has not been done before in the convention.

There were five nominees for the place. O. H. Law. Detroit; A. A. Freyman, Kansas City; L. Miller Woodson, Gallatin, Tenn.; E. H. Glidden, Little Falls, N. Y., and Dr. Caroline Dodson. Dr. Freyman withdrew. The ballot by States proceeded smoothly, resulted as follows: Glidden, 142; Woodson, resulted as follows: Glidden, 142; Woodson, 75, and Law, 25. Dr. Glidden having received a majority of all votes cast was declared elected. There were four nominees for supreme adjuster, but Mrs. Dr. Dodson and F. A. Winn withdrew in favor of E. O. Buchanan, of Gallatin, Tenn., and he was elected by acclamation.

The chairman, the Kansas City judge and colonel, and the man of the golden beard, James G. Young, was the only man named for the office of supreme instructor. A risfor the office of supreme instructor. A rising vote was taken on an acclamation election, and the convention rose en masse.

WOMEN GIVEN OFFICE. There were two candidates in the field for supreme prelate, but Mrs. Craig, of Detroit, withdrew in favor of Mrs. Bertha Glasser, of Cincinnati, and she was elected by acclamation.

The genial colonel was declared elected amidst the most unbounded enthusiasm.

The office of supreme herald found Mrs. T. J. Jewett, of New Orleans, Mrs. J. B Shade, of Philadelphia, and Mrs. Wade, of Indianapolis, as contestants. The two last retired in favor of Mrs. Jewett, and she was elected by acclamation.

O. D. Parker, Denison, Tex., Mrs. Anna Allen, Cincinnati, and Mrs. Anna Garabrant, Paterson, N. J., Were candidates for supreme watchman. A ballot was called, and resulted as follows: Allen, 1/8; Parker, 115, and Garabrant, 6. No election was declared, and Mrs. Garabrant withdrew. Another ballot was taken, which resulted: Allen, 118; Parker, 114. Mr. Parker then moved that it be made by acclamation, and it was so done. Col. J. A. Vers. of Custer City, Pa., was elected supreme vidette by acclamation. By this time it was 10:30, and a motion to adjoint man acceptant. tion to adjourn was edged. It was put by the Chair and premptly voted down, al-though the delegates were yawning and stretching in their seats.

GREAT INSTALLATION. That brought up the question of the installation of the newly-elected officers, and how it should be done. Some declared it should be by ritual and others thought just any way. The chairman finally marshaled them all before him and delivered the following unique obligation: "Hands up! You, in the presence of the Almighty God, do most solemnly promise to serve in the offices to which you have been severally elected to the best of your knowledge and ability, so help you God. Hands down!"

It was greeted with a roar of laughter.
The teliers announced that they would be able to finish their count that night, and the convention adjourned just at midnight, to meet at 10 o'clock this morning. Its business is about completed, and about half of the delegates left last night for their homes. The supreme officers will contain the contains the cont homes. The supreme officers will get together, and, in a week or so, prepare a statement to submit to Judge Taylor as to why this new organization should exist, and not the oid. He has not yet been approached on that subject. F. A. Winn, a St. Louis attorney who has that matter in charge, said to a Journal reporter last night that they had no desire to meet the judge until they were fully prepared to do so.

The election of five supreme trustees was next called for. Out of a dozen or more nominees, J. C. Bowles, of Detroit, was elected as chairman, and the convention proceeded to ballot for the rest. From this time on the utmost confusion reigned in the hall. Delegates came and went, and the Chair was almost unable to conduct business. The vote for trustees was so voluminous that the tellers de-clared that they would be un-able to count the vote yet that evening, but they were instructed to go ahead, and the election of a committee of five on laws and supervision was called, with new tellers in charge. Albert Haseler, of Philadelphia, was elected chairman, and then four names were mentioned which the convention elected by acclama-tion, with little regard to order or Boyce. of Chicago; C. A. Frey-man, Kansas City; E. E. Perrin, Detroit, and V. C. Alderson, Chicago. A committee of five on finance was next called, and J. S. Elkins, of Indiana, Pa., elected chairman. There were a dozen nominations for a place on it, and a ballot was called. What was confusion now almost became a riot. Many delegates had left, and the balance did as they pleased. There were loud calls for adjournment, but no notice was taken of them. Finally the Chair in desperation asked them if they desired to go home before morning, and if they wanted a session to-day. Some want-ed both, and some didn't want either. Su-preme Justice-elect Towne said that he had to leave the city early in the morning, and could not attend another session.

HIS LEG MANGLED.

James Reed, a Railroader, Run Over and Crushed by an Electric Car.

James Reed, a rai'roader, twenty-three years of age, was run over by an electric car at the corner of Kentucky avenue and Illinois street, and was badly mangled, being crushed between the bip and knee, and between the knee and ankle. He must have been lying across the track, as he was not injured either in getting on or off the car. Reed was able to give his name, but was rather incoherent regarding his place of residence. At one time he said he lived on Hadley avenue, and again Howard street. Kregelo & Whitsett's ambulance was at once called and Reed was taken to the City Hospital. His injury is not likely to prove fatal, though very painful. At the hospital he said his home was at

Was Beaten for Interfering.

Yesterday Flanner & Buchanan's ambulance was called to the fair grounds by the report that a man was lying dead on the track, near Jack Christian's place. When the ambulance got there a dead man was not found, but one with his face pounded into a jelly. He said he had objected to a man's attentions to his wife, and the other had responded at length with blows. No names were learned.

Went to the Lexington Fair. About the biggest event in the country among colored people is the Lexington, Ky., fair, which is managed by people of their race. This year Indianapolis will be represented by about two hundred attendants, who departed over the J., M. & I. last night, taking with them the Brother-hood and colored female bands.

AMALGAMATED ASSOCIATION.

Name the Street-Car Employes Give Themselves-Will Conclude To-Day.

The street-car employes' convention took up for consideration yesterday morning the report of the committee on constitution and by-laws. The preamble and articles were taken up seriatim and adopted as amended. It was thus established that the association will be known as the Amalgamated Association of Street Railway Employes of America. The organization stands independent of both the American Federation and the Knights of Labor. It was, however, voted as the sense of the meeting that members should not sever connection with either the Federation or the Knights, and should ally themselves with local delegate bodies, such as the Central Labor Union of this city. The constitution provides that the officers shall be a president, five vice-presidents, secretary and treasurer, and three trustees. The secretary and treasurer will alone hold a salaried office. The President, five vicepresidents and secretary form the executive committee. The constitution also provides for annual meetings, and directs that the next convention shall occur on the sec-ond Monday of October, 1893. The headquarters are located by the constitution in Indianapolis. The rest of the constitution is of routine nature, defining duties, etc. The convention will conclude its work to-day. The election of officers and the adoption of the unwritten work yet remains to be done. There is considerable interest shown in the election of officers. Detroit, with eleven representatives, wants executive honor, and is pressing Law for president. Husted, of Toledo, and Callahan, of New Orleans, are also candidates.

J. P. Riggs, of Indianapolis, is the leading candidate for secretary and treasurer. It is generally conceded that he will be elected, practically without opposition. He is thoroughly honest and capable, and a consistent and effective worker in the a consistent and effective worker in the ranks of organized labor. His election would insure a rapid extension of the Amalgamated Association to all cities having a large number of street-railway

THE BEST DISINFECTANT.

Dr. Theodore Potter Recommends Athanon. Indianapolis, Sept. 12, 1892. Western Chemical Company, Indianapolis: Dear Sir-In response to your request for a test of the disinfectant properties and value of the article manufactured and sold by you under the name Athanon. I submit the following re-

It cannot be too well understood that there is a great difference between deodorizing and dis-infecting. The former destroys or obscures the odor which is unpleasant, but not necessarily of any great danger. The latter destroys the cause of decomposition or disease. A simple deodorant should not be relied upon for disinfection. such a procedure is like that of the ostrich hiding its head in the sand and imagining itself safe.

All true disinfectants are deodorants, since they destroy that which generates the odor; but all deodorants are not disinfectants. An agent which deodorizes and at the same time disinfects has a special value, and this is true of your product. As a deodorizer it is very efficient, used, for instance, about closets, stables, garbage dumps, etc. If put into a vessel containing excretious from the body it will not only prevent the evolution of the odor of decomposition, but it is found, upon examination, to have prevented the growth of bacteria. Such bacteria as were originally present are found to have been killed. The agent is therefore a true disinfectant. For ordinary deodorizing it may be scattered about and upon the odoriferous material. But for dis-infection it should be applied directly to the infection it should be applied directly to the offending matter. In case of diseases, such as diphtheria, typhoid, dysentery, scarlatina and cholera, it should be mixed with the expectoration or discharges in the vessel and allowed to stand an hour before emptying. A teaspoonful or two should be put, dry, into vessels intended to receive expectoration. Being cheap it can and should be used freely. Very truly yours, Theodore Potter, M. D., Professor Bacteriology, Medical College, Indiana, Consulting physician for chest diseases, City Dispensary.
